[STORIES FOR JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL]

Pinocchio

Many years ago, there lived a poor man named Geppetto. He made puppets from pieces of wood. He called his favorite puppet Pinocchio. "I would love to be a father to a real boy," he wished.

That night, a fairy who knew Geppetto was a good man, cast a magic spell over Pinocchio.

The very next day, Geppetto awoke and was very happy to find that Pinocchio could walk, sit and talk. Poor Geppetto wanted to send Pinocchio to school. He sold his only coat for a spelling book.

"Now you can go to school like a real boy," said Geppetto as he waved goodbye to Pinocchio.

On the way to school, Pinocchio stopped to watch a puppet show in a town.

"Would you like to join my puppet show?" asked the evil puppet master.

Pinocchio happily agreed. He was locked inside the evil puppet master's caravan. He wished he was safe with Geppetto. The good fairy suddenly appeared. She had heard Pinocchio's wish and set him free. Pinocchio was happy to be free.

"I'm going straight to school," he said.

On the way, he met an evil fox who told him all about a wonderful place called Fun Island. Pinocchio forgot all about school and gave the fox his spelling book in return for a ticket to Fun Island.

"Where are you going, Pinocchio?" asked good fairy. "I'm on the way to school," said Pinocchio. Pinocchio's nose grew very, very long. He wished he hadn't told a lie. The fairy called a bird to peck off his long nose because Pinocchio was very sorry. Pinocchio promised never to be naughty ever again and went straight to school.

At school, Pinocchio told his friend all about Fun Island. His friend wanted to go with him. Pinocchio and his hurriedly climbed aboard a ship that was going to Fun Island.

On the island they didn't know that little boys were turned into donkeys and used for very hard work. Pinocchio cried and wished he hadn't come to the island. He also wished he didn't look like a silly donkey. The fairy had heard his wish and with a wave of her magic wand his donkey ears and tail disappeared. Pinocchio sat on the shore, sadly looking out to the sea. He wondered if he would ever see Geppetto again.

Suddenly he saw Geppetto who had sailed out to the sea in search of Pinocchio. Geppetto didn't see the huge whale behind him. The whale swallowed Geppetto and his boat. Pinocchio knew he had to save Geppetto. He jumped into the water and swam with all his might. As he got closer, the whale opened his mouth and Pinocchio swam right in. Deep inside the whale's belly, Pinocchio and Geppetto hugged each other, happy to be together again.

"We must find a way out," said Geppetto,

"We will make a fire from the wood of my boat." The smoke made the whale sneeze. They shot out of the whale's mouth and back into the sea.

Pinocchio and Geppetto swam safely to shore. They were both tired. They lay on the sand and fell asleep. When Geppetto awoke, Pinocchio had become a real boy. "At last my wish has come true!" cried Geppetto.

MOANA

Once upon a time, there lived a little beautiful girl named Moana in the Motunui Island. Even when she was little, she loved the ocean. She also loved listening to Gramma Tala's stories. Moana's favorite was about the trickster demigod Maui, who stole the heart of the mother island, Te Fiti. According to Gramma, Maui upset the balance of nature by stealing the heart.

Moana's dad Chief Tui, believed the ocean was dangerous. The islanders were forbidden to sail beyond the reef, but little Moana felt a deep connection to the ocean and to all the creatures that belong in it. She always wanted to help. And the ocean noticed and gave her a special gift. When Chief Tui picked up Moana, she dropped the gift. Luckily, someone else picked it up. It was Gramma Tala. She believed that the ocean's gift was the heart of Te Fiti.

As Moana grew, she worked hard to help lead her people and follow her father's rules. But when Moana turned sixteen, Gramma Tala took her aside. "It's time to learn who you were meant to be" Gramma said. She led Moana to a hidden cavern full of ancient canoes. When Moana started drumming, BAM! BAM! BAM! She could feel the spirits of her ancestors. They were way-finders-voyagers on the ocean.

Gramma Tala's last wish was for Moana to journey across the ocean, find Maui, and restore the heart of Te Fiti. So, with the heart safe inside her necklace, Moana set sail. But sailing on the open ocean was not easy for Moana—especially when a storm hit.

Moana and her boat washed up on a faraway island when she met Maui the demigod. He was not what Moana expected. Maui stole Moana's boat. But when he tried to sail away, the ocean made sure Moana went with him. The ocean wanted them to work together.

Maui promised to help her return the heart of Te Fiti only if Moana helped him find his fishhook. But first, they had to get past the Kakamora, an army of wild coconut-clad bandits. Then, they had to dive into Lalontai, the realm of monsters. Thinking fast, Moana tricked Tamatoa, a crab monster and she and Maui retrieved the missing fishhook.

Along the way, Maui taught Moana how to way-find which is to use the sun, the stars, the moon, and the ocean current navigate. And when the journey became too difficult, the spirit of Gramma Tala returned. "Know who you are meant to be," Gramma's spirit told Moana.

When Moana and Maui finally reached Te Fiti, the mother of the island was gone. Instead, there was a lava monster named Te Ka. Maui and Moana tried everything, but they could not defeat Te Ka. Then Moana had an idea. Summoning all her courage, Moana gave the heart to Te Ka and Te Ka remembered who she was meant to be. She was Te Fiti. With her heart restored, Te Fiti bloomed once again. The world was back in balance

Moana and Maui said goodbye. Their journey together was complete. Maui transformed into a hawk and flew away. It was time for Moana to return to her people. The young girl from Motunui Island now knew exactly who she was meant to be. She was a daughter, a leader, and a way-finder, Moana.

A Little Match Girl

Most terribly cold it was; it snowed, and was nearly quite dark, and evening—the last evening of the year. In this cold and darkness there went along the street a poor little girl, bareheaded, and with naked feet. When she left home she had slippers on, it is true; but what was the good of that? They were very large slippers, which her mother had hit her to wear; so large were they; and the poor little thing lost them as she scuffled away across the street, because of two carriages that rolled by dreadfully fast.

One slipper was nowhere to be found; the other had been laid hold of by an urchin, and off he ran with it; he thought it would do capitally for a cradle when hesome day or other should have children himself. So the little maiden walked on with her tiny naked feet, that were quite red and blue from cold. She carried a quantity of matches in an old apron, and she held a bundle of them in her hand. Nobody had bought anything of her the whole livelong day; no one had given her a single farthing.

She crept along trembling with cold and hunger—a very picture of sorrow, the poor little thing! The flakes of snow covered her long fair hair, which fell in beautiful curls around her neck; but of that, of course, she neveronce now thought. From all the windows the candles were gleaming, and it smelt so deliciously of roast goose, for you know it was New Year's Eve; yes, of that she thought.

In a corner formed by two houses, of which one advanced more than the other, she seated herself down and cowered together. Her little feet she had drawn close up to her, but she grew colder and colder, and to go home she did not venture, for she had not sold any matches and could not bring a farthing of money: from her father she would certainly get blows, and at home it was cold too, for above her she had only the roof, through which the wind whistled, even though the largest cracks were stopped up with straw and rags.

Her little hands were almost numbed with cold. Oh! A match might afford her a world of comfort, if she only dared take a single one out of the bundle, draw it against the wall, and warm her fingers bit. She drew one out. "Rischt!" how it blazed, how it burnt! It was a warm, bright flame, like a candle, as she held her hands over it: it was a wonderful light. It seemed really to the little maiden as though she were sitting before a largeiron stove, with burnished brass feet and a brass ornament at top. The fire burned with such blessed influence; it warmed so delightfully. The little girl had already stretched out her feet to warm them too; but the small flame went out, the stove vanished: she had only the remains of the burnt-out match in her hand.

She rubbed another against the wall: it burned brightly, and where the light fell on the wall, there the wall became transparent like a veil, so that she could see into the room. On the table was spread a snow-white tablecloth; upon it was a splendid porcelain service, and the roast goose was steaming famously with its stuffing of apple and dried plums. And what was still more capital to behold was, the goose hopped down from the dish, reeled about on the floor with knife and fork in its breast, till it came up to the poor little girl; when the match went out and nothing but the thick, cold, damp wall was left behind. She lighted another match. Now there she was sitting under the most magnificent Christmas tree: it was still larger, and more decorated than the one which she had seen through the glass door in the rich merchant's house.

Thousands of lights were burning on the green branches, and gaily-colored pictures, such as she had seen in the shop-windows, looked down upon her. The little maiden stretched out her hand towards them when--the match went out.

The lights of the Christmas tree rose higher and higher, she saw them now as stars in heaven; one fell down and formed a long trail of fire. "Someone is just dead!" said the little girl; for her old grandmother, the only person who had loved her, and who was now no more, had told her, that when a star falls, a soul ascends to God.

She drew another match against the wall: it was again light, and in the lustre there stood the old grandmother, so bright and radiant, so mild, and with such an expression of love.

"Grandmother!" cried the little one.

"Oh, take me with you! You go away when the match burns out; you vanish like the warm stove, like the delicious roast goose, and like the magnificent Christmas tree!" And she rubbed the whole bundle of matches quickly against the wall, for she wanted to be quite sure of keeping her grandmother near her. And the matches gave such a brilliant light that it was brighter than at noon-day: never formerly had the grandmother been so beautiful and so tall. She took the little maiden, on her arm, and both flew in brightness and in joy so high, so very high, and then above was neither cold, nor hunger, nor anxiety—they were with God.

But in the corner, at the cold hour of dawn, sat the poor girl, with rosy cheeks and with a smiling mouth, leaning against the wall--frozen to death on the last evening of the old year. Stiff and stark sat the child there with her matches, of which one bundle had been burnt.

"She wanted to warm herself," people said. No one had the slightest suspicion of what beautiful things she had seen; no one even dreamed of the splendor in which, with her grandmother she had entered on the joys of a new year.

Alice in Wonderland

It was a warm summer day and Alice was getting bored sitting beside her sister, who had her nose buried in a book. Suddenly, a little White Rabbit with pink eyes ran in front of her shouting, "Oh dear, oh dear, I'm late." The Rabbit pulled a watch out of his pocket to check the time. He shook his head, then disappeared down a rabbit's hole. "I must find out why he's in such a hurry!" cried Alice. Filled with curiosity, she ran to the rabbit's hole and peeped through the entrance.

The hole dropped suddenly and Alice fell. "When will I ever reach the bottom of this dreadful hole?" she shouted, while falling helplessly downwards. Finally she landed in a long, narrow hallway with doors of many sizes. On a three-legged table, Alice found a tiny gold key and a green bottle that said "DRINK ME". "This key must fit one of the doors," she said.

"It's the one behind the table," she cried, "but I'm too big to fit through such a little door. May be the potion in that bottle will help me," she decided. And she drank it. Alice began to shrink until she was no bigger than a doll. She opened the door and quickly ran through it. "What a splendid garden!" she exclaimed. "Why, I'm no bigger than the insects that crawl on these flowers." But the excitement soon wore off. Alice grew bored with her tiny size. "I want to be big again," she shouted.

Her shouts startled the White Rabbit, who ran past her again. Mistaking her for his maid, he ordered, "Go to my cottage and fetch my gloves and fan." Alice was confused by the Rabbit's behaviour. "May be I'll find something at the cottage to help me," she said hopefully.

A piece of chocolate cake was kept on a table by the doorway. Next to the cake was a note that read "EAT ME". "I'm so hungry," Alice said as she ate the cake. "I feel strange. Oh no! I've grown larger than this house!" she cried. "Get out of my way! You're blocking the door!" shouted the White Rabbit. Alice managed to pick up his fan. Immediately, she began to shrink.

"Oh, I'll never get back to the right size," Alice cried. She went looking for help. Soon, she saw a green caterpillar dressed in a pink jacket. He was sitting on the top of a large mushroom, smoking a bubble pipe. "One side makes you big, the other side makes you small," he said to Alice before slithering away.

"One side of what?" Alice called after him. "The mushroom, silly," he answered. Alice ate a piece of the mushroom. "Thank goodness, I'm growing!" she cried, "But which way do I go?" "That path leads to the Mad Hatter. The other way leads to Lae March Hare," said a voice. Alice turned to find a smiling Cheshire Cat in a tree. "I'll see you later at the Queen's croquet game," he said before disappearing.

Alice walked down a path, "How lovely! A tea party," she thought. "There's no room for you!" shouted the Mad Hatter, "You may stay if you answer my riddle." Alice smiled. She loved riddles. After several riddles, Alice became confused. "Every time I answer, you ask a question," she told the Mad Hatter. "We don't know any answers," he giggled. "This is a waste of time," scolded Alice. The others ignored her. They were trying to wake the Dormouse.

Alice continued her walk. She found herself in the middle of a field where the Queen of Hearts was playing croquet. Her guards and gardeners were shaped like cards. One gardener had planted white roses by mistake and then painted them red, "Off with their heads!" shrieked the Queen. "I hate white roses!" "Have you ever played croquet?" the Queen asked Alice.

"Yes," Alice timidly answered. "But I've never used a flamingo or a hedgehog." "Play with me!" ordered the Queen. "And let me win or I'll have your head!" Alice tried her best to play well but she had trouble with her flamingo. "Off with her head!" cried the Queen. Just then a trumpet sounded at the distance calling court to session.

Everyone rushed into the courtroom. "Court is now in session," announced the White Rabbit, "Will Alice please come to the stand?" Alice took the stand and looked at the jury box, where the March Hare and the Mad Hatter were making noise. The Dormouse slept and the Cheshire Cat smiled at her. "What's going on?" asked Alice.

"You are guilty of stealing the delicious heart-shaped tarts!" accused the Queen, "And now you must be punished. Off with her head Off with her head!" yelled the Queen. "How silly," replied Alice. "I did not have the slightest idea what you were talking about! I was only playing croquet."

Alice felt someone touch her shoulder, "Wake up. You've been sleeping for too long," said her sister softly. "I had a strange dream," said Alice. She told her sister about the White Rabbit, the mad tea party, the Queen of Hearts and the trial. But her sister wasn't paying attention. "You're reading again," mumbled Alice. As she stretched, Alice saw a little White Rabbit with pink eyes scurry behind a tree.

Peter Pan

In an area called Edwardian in London lived Wendy Darling with her two younger brothers. Their parent left them in a house care belonging to the lady Nana. On a night when Mrs. Nana was away, Wendy Darling awakened by a strange sound. Then she ran toward the sound. She saw a boy named Peter Pan. Wendy was surprised and asked him, "What are you doing here?". "I'm looking for my shadow" Peter replied.

Finally Wendy helped peter to look for his shadow. After finding the shadow, Wendy was sewing Peter's shadow to stick on as before. Finally Peter Pan got its shadow back. He thanked to Wendy and promised to visit her again.

After a few days, Peter Pan returned to visit Wendy. He was accompanied by a jealous little fairy named Tinker Bell. Wendy was very happy; she introduced them both to her younger brother. Peter Pan told them all about Neverland, a world full of wonders. He also would like to invite them to go and stay at Neverland. Wendy and her brother were happy about that invitation. They also agreed to go.

"Before you go you have to learn to fly first," asked Peter Pan. Wendy Darling and her brother were confused because they did not know how to fly. Then Tinker bell was helping them. She sprinkled magic dust toward Wendy and her brother. Finally, the three of them can fly. With the help of Peter pan, they came out of the window of the house to Neverland.

Wendy and her brothers stayed for a few weeks at Neverland. They lived with a bunch of missing children. They were children who were lost and never found again. There Wendy and her brothers played happily with them. The Lost Children asked Wendy to be their mother. Wendy could not refuse the request. Afterward, she became their caregivers. Wendy always told a story to them before going to bed.

An evil pirate named captain hook was looking for the presence of Peter Pan and the lost children. Captain hook is their enemy in Neverland. He was revenge against Peter Pan because he already cut his hand and gave it to crocodiles. The crocodile ate that hand and a clock belonging to captain hook. The clock kept ringing in the belly of the crocodile. That crocodile continued to follow him hook it continuing wherever he went. For months, captain hooks looked for their hiding place. After a long time, he finally discovered the hiding place. Then he began to make plans to catch them.

After so long cared by Wendy Darling, the lost children began to feel nostalgic with a real family. Wendy also invited them all to stay with her in real world. They were very happy and wanted to go with Wendy. Eventually they all asked Peter Pan to let them go into the real world. At first Peter Pan refused, but after they forced he allowed them. He asked Tinker Bell to make way to real world. Wendy also invited Peter Pan to go, "Come with us!" "No I will not ever go out of this world and become adult," said Peter Pan. He was going to leave them.

When Wendy and the lost children were about to go to the real world, captain hook was coming. He kidnapped them to his ship. Tinker Bell who survived told Peter Pan, "Peter, Wendy and the others have been kidnapped by Captain Hook!" Tinker Bell said. Peter Pan was shocked, "I have to save them!" said Peter Pan.

Peter Pan flew very quickly into a pirate ship to save them. Above the ships, Peter Pan saw they were tied. With its intelligence, Peter Pan made a sound like a clock rang. The sound made the whole crew frightened. They thought that it was crocodile who wanted to attack them anymore. One by one, the crew went to jump into the water. Then Peter pan jumped on board to attack remain crew. Finally Peter Pan managed to release Wendy and the lost children. Realizing he had been duped, captain hooks out and attacked Peter Pan. Then fierce battle happened between them. They were clashing their swords on board. Peter Pan pushed captain hook fell into the sea and then captain hook eaten by a crocodile that was waiting for him in the sea. Finally they all survived from captain hook.

The missing children changed their minds. They wanted to stay in Neverland with Peter Pan and Tinker Bell. Then Peter Pan was escorted Wendy and her brothers returned to the real world. Once safely home, Wendy asked Peter Pan to stay with them. But Peter Pan still rejected it. He promised to visit Wendy again someday.

FROZEN

When Princess Elsa and Princess Anna of Arendelle were little girls, they were best of friends. Anna was one of the only people who knew Elsa's secret, Elsa had the power to make snow and ice! One night, Elsa filled an empty ballroom with snow so the sisters could play together. But as they played, Elsa lost the control. She accidently hit Anna with the blast of icy magic. Anna was badly hurt. Her parents went to the ancient mountains trolls for help.

A wise old troll told them that Anna could be saved- she was lucky to have been hit in the head, not in the heart. You may also like to read, Frozen Fever.

Anna did not remember what had happened. To keep Elsa's gift a secret from everyone else, their parents surrounded the castle with walls and never let anyone inside. But whenever Elsa had strong feelings, the magic still spilled out. Elsa didn't want to hurt her sister again, so she stopped playing with Anna. That made Anna very lonely. Even after their parents were lost in a storm sea, the sisters didn't spend any time together.

Years later, it was time for Elsa to become queen of Arendelle. For just that day, the castle gates were opened. Hundreds of people attended the coronation ceremony. Elsa worked hard to hide her feelings and powers. At the party, Anna danced with handsome prince Hans from the Southern Isles. He made her heart flutter. It seemed like they had everything in common. They decided to get married. Elsa thought their engagement was a bad idea. Anna couldn't believe it and started arguing. Elsa started to lose control and as she shouted, ice shot from her hands. Everyone stared at Elsa in shock. Now all the Arendelle knew Elsa's secret. She panicked and fled for the mountains. Also, read Princess Aurora Story.

Anna felt horrible. Elsa's powers had created a terrible winter storm- in the middle of summer. She left Hans in charge of the kingdom and raced after Elsa. As Anna rode through the fierce wind, her horse threw her into the snow and ran off back to Arendelle. Luckily, she met an ice harvester named Kristoff and his reindeer, Sven. Together they set off to look for Elsa. As they climbed the mountain, Anna and Kristoff discovered a beautiful winter wonderland. They met an enchanted snowman named Olaf. Olaf knew where Elsa was and wanted to help them to bring back summer.

Meanwhile, Hans was helping the people of Arendelle. When Anna's horse came back to the castle without her, Hans turned to the crowd and asked for volunteers. Back on the mountain, Olaf led Anna and Kristoff to a giant ice palace that Elsa had created with her powers. Even Kristoff was impressed. Inside, Anna told Elsa about the terrible storm in Adrendelle. Elsa was worried and didn't know how to unfreeze the town, and she thought that Anna and Arendelle might be better off without her. Also, read Princess Moana Story.

Anna wanted Elsa to come home but Elsa was too scared that she would hurt more people. As the sisters argued, an icy wave of magic burst from Elsa's body and struck Anna in the chest. Anna wouldn't leave without her sister. Elsa knew what she had to do. She used her magic to create a giant snowman to chase Anna and her friends out of the palace. The friends landed safely below. They had escaped from the snowman but Anna was worried as her hair was turning snowy white. Kristoff brought Anna to the trolls. A troll told them that unless Elsa's magic was reversed, Anna would be frozen solid. Only an act of true love could thaw a frozen heart.

Anna knew she loved Hans. Anna began to shiver. Kristoff was worried about her. Hans and his soldiers had just arrived at the ice palace and attacked Elsa. They brought her back to Arendelle and threw her in the dungeon. When Anna arrived in Arendelle, she asked Hans to save her with a kiss, he refused as he had only pretended to love her. He wanted to take over Arendelle by getting rid of Anna and Elsa. Hans left Anna alone and shivering. Olaf found her and helped her warm up but Anna was getting weaker.

Olaf glanced out of the window and saw Kristoff racing toward the castle. Kristoff was the one Anna needed to kiss. Elsa had escaped from the dungeon but Hans was close behind her. Hans told Elsa that her magic blast hit Anna's heart. Elsa collapsed in the snow and closed her eyes. Everything she had done to protect her sister had failed.

Nearby, Anna hurried towards Kristoff when he heard Hans draw his sword. Instead of saving herself, Anna leaped in front of her sister. Hans swung his sword but it shattered against Anna's frozen body. Elsa clutched her sister. Suddenly, Anna began to thaw and the two sisters hugged. As Olaf watched them, he remembered what the wise old troll had said, "An act of true love will thaw a frozen heart."

Anna's love for Elsa had saved both of them and the Kingdom. The two sisters were best friends again and summer had returned to Arendelle. Elsa even made Olaf a little snow cloud to keep him from melting. Elsa had a surprise for Anna- the castle gates were wide open. Now everything was the way it was supposed to be.

DANAU TOBA

Once upon a time there was a prosperous village in a far away island called Sumatra. In northern part of the island, lived a farmer whose name was Toba. He lived alone in a hut by a small forest. He worked on his farmland to grow rice and vegetables that he sold to local market. Once day he wanted to catch some fish so he went to a river and fished there. He was very surprised when he got a big fish. The fish was as big as human being. Soon he went home and put the fish in his kitchen. He planned to cook the fish for his dinner that night. When he got to his house that afternoon he took a bath. Then as he walked into his bedroom after taking a bath Toba was very shocked.

There stood in his living room a very beautiful girl. The girl greeted him nicely. For a moment Toba was speechless. When he could control his emotion he asked her.

"Who are you? What's your name? Why suddenly you are here in my house?"

"Pardon me if I surprised you Mr. Toba, but you took me here. I was the fish that you caught in the river. Now that I become a human being again, I would like to thank you and I will be your servant to express my thankfulness."

"Were you the fish?"

"Yes, I was the fish. Look at your kitchen."

Toba immediately rushed to his kitchen and the fish was nowhere to be seen. He saw some gold coins instead.

"Whose coins are these? Why there are some coins here?"

"Those coins are mine. As I changed into human being my scales changed into gold coins."

"Ok you can live here and work for me. Your room is over there."

"Thank you very much Mr. Toba."

Since that day the beautiful girl lived in Toba's house. Since she was very beautiful Toba fell in love with her and not long after that they got married. The girl married to Toba on one condition that he would never tell anybody about her past. Toba agreed to the condition.

Several months later Toba's wife delivered to a baby boy. Their son was healthy. Soon he grew up into a handsome boy. Toba named him Samosir. Unfortunately Samosir was a lazy boy. He did not want to work at all. When his father worked hard in his rice field and farm, Samosir just slept. When he was awake he talked a lot and he ate a lot. Toba was very disappointed with his son's nature. He hoped that one day Samosir would change into a diligent boy. Day in and day out but Samosir never changed.

Toba used to go to his farm and rice field early in the morning. Then at midday his wife would bring him food. They used to eat lunch at their farm. As he was a teenager Toba and his wife tried to change his behavior. They ordered Samosir to bring food for his father for lunch while her mother stayed at home to do household chores. But Samosir never did his duty well. He always woke up very late. He woke up after midday. Then one day his mother forced him to bring the food.

"Sam, wake up. Go to the farm and bring the food for your father. He must be very tired and hungry now."

"But Mom, I am tired and hungry too," he answered.

"What makes you tired? You just wake up. Go now. Your father needs the food."

Toba reluctantly went to the farm. But he did not go to the farm immediately. He stopped somewhere in the street and ate the food. It was already late afternoon when he got to the farm. His father was disappointed. Then he was angry as he realized that his son had eaten his food. He said sarcastically.

"O, you are stupid lazy boy. You are son of a fish!"

Samosir was hurt. He went home right away and as he got home he told his mother about his father's words. Samosir's mother was shocked. She was also deeply hurt.

"O Toba. You break your promise so I cannot live with you here anymore. Now you have to accept to consequence of what you did. Samosir, now go to the hill, find the tallest tree and climb it!"

"Why mom? What will happen?"

"Just do it, never ask any question. Good bye!"

As soon as she finished saying that suddenly the weather changed. Sunny day suddenly turned into cloudy day. Not long after that the rain poured heavily. The rain last for several days. Consequently the area was flooded. The whole area became a big lake. Then it was called Lake Toba and in the middle of the lake there is an island called Samosir Island. Meanwhile Toba's wife disappeared.

The Legend of Telaga Warna

Once upon a time in West Java, there was a kingdom. The king and the queen did not have any children yet. The king was so restless. He was thinking who would replace him as a king if he did not have any children. Everyday the king and the queen prayed to God. They asked God to give them a baby.

Finally, a miracle happened. The queen was pregnant! The king and the queen were extremely happy. The people were also happy. They loved the king and the queen. The king was wise and the queen was very kind to the people. The time that the people had been waiting for finally arrived. The baby was born. It was a beautiful baby girl. The king and the queen loved the princess very much. They gave anything she asked and that made her become a spoiled girl! She would be angry whenever she could not get what she wanted. She really had bad temper! She was rude and always said bad things to people. Nobody liked her.

When the princess would celebrate her 17th birthday soon, she wanted to have a great birthday party.

"Mother, I want to invite many people and I want them to give me birthday presents. Especially from you, Mother," asked the princess.

"Don't worry, I will give you the best present," said the queen.

The princess was smiling. She was so happy. She could already imagine that her party would be great. The king and the queen invited many people to attend the party. Well, they were reluctant to attend it. They did not like the princess. However they respected the king and the queen. Therefore they came and brought birthday presents. The king asked the princess to open all the birthday presents. The princess did that. She was hoping to get excellent gifts. She opened the first gift.

"What's this? Yuck! I don't like it!" She threw the gift away. She opened the second gift. "Gosh! It's so ugly! I hate it!"

She threw it away. She opened the third gift. Again, she threw it away. The king and the queen were sad to see their daughter's behavior. The queen then gave the princess her birthday present. The princess opened the present carefully.

"Mother, what's this?" asked the princess.

"It's jewelries. I got them from my mother. They are so precious and expensive," explained the queen.

"But they are old-fashioned! I hate those jewelries, Mother!"

The princess again threw the birthday present. The queen was so sad. She began to cry. Everybody was also sad. When they saw the queen crying, all the guests also started to cry. The tears fell like rain. Indeed, it was like rain. Slowly the tears flooded the palace. Slow but sure more and more water from tears filled the palace. The tears did not stop and that made the whole palace flooded.

The palace was swallowed by the water. It created a lake! And the water was colorful. Since then people named the lake as Telaga Warna or the Colorful Lake.

Until now we still can see the colors coming from the lake. The local people believe that the colors are coming from the jewelries that the princess threw away.

[STORIES FOR SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL]

MALEFICENT

Maleficent was the most powerful fairy living in the Moors, a magical forest realm bordering a human kingdom. As a young girl, she met and fell in love with a human peasant boy named Stefan, whose love for Maleficent was overshadowed by his ambition. As they became older, the two grew apart, and Maleficent became protector of the Moors. When King Henry tried to conquer the Moors, a grown Maleficent forced him to retreat. As he laid dying, he declared that whoever killed Maleficent would be named his successor and married his only daughter, Princess Leila. Stefan visited Maleficent in the Moors. He drugs her, but cannot bring himself to kill her. Instead, he cut off her wings and presented them to the king. Overwhelmed by Stefan's betrayal, Maleficent turned the Moors into a dark kingdom. The raven Diaval acted as her wings, spy and confidant. She transformed him into different forms as needed, including human.

After some time, Diaval informs Maleficent that Stefan, now king, was hosting a christening for his newborn daughter Aurora. Bent on revenge, Maleficent arrived uninvited and cursed the infant princess: on her sixteenth birthday, she would prick her finger on the spindle of a spinning wheel and succumb to a death like sleep from which she would never awaken. When Stefan begged for mercy, Maleficent mocked him by letting the curse be broken by true love's kiss. Stefan sent Aurora to live with three pixies - Knotgrass, Thistlewit, and Flittle - until the day after her sixteenth birthday, while he destroyed all the spinning wheels in the kingdom and hid their remnants in the castle dungeon. He sent his armies to find and kill Maleficent, but she surrounded the Moors with an impenetrable wall of thorns. King Stefan slipped into madness and paranoia trying to prevent the curse, even neglecting to see his wife on her deathbed.

Despite her initial dislike for Aurora, Maleficent began to have motherly feelings for the girl. After a brief meeting with the young Aurora, Maleficent watched over her from afar. When Aurora was fifteen, she encountered Maleficent. Knowing that she was being watched over, she called Maleficent her "fairy godmother." Maleficent tried desperately to revoke the curse, but even she could not do it. In the forest, Aurora met Prince Philip, and the two were attracted to each other. On the day before Aurora's sixteenth birthday, Maleficent invited her to live with her in the Moors. The pixies inadvertently told Aurora of her past. When Aurora learnt Maleficent's true identity, she ran to her father's castle.

After a brief reunion with his daughter, Stefan locked her away in a room for her own safety. However, the power of the curse drew Aurora to the dungeon, where a spinning wheel magically reassembled. She pricked her finger and fell into a deep sleep. Maleficent, intent on saving her, abducted Phillip and infiltrated Stefan's castle, but Phillip's kiss failed to awaken Aurora. At her bedside, Maleficent apologized to Aurora and kissed her forehead. Aurora awoke. However, as they attempted to leave, they triggered an ambush. An iron net dropped on her. (Iron burns fairies.) Maleficent transformed Diaval into a dragon, but he was eventually caught as well. Stefan beat and taunted Maleficent, but before he could deliver a killing blow, Aurora found her wings and released them. They fled to Maleficent and reattached themselves. Maleficent carried Stefan to the top of the castle's highest tower. She could not bring herself to kill him. Stefan attacked her as she turned away, however, and both plummeted from the tower. Maleficent was able to break away, and Stefan fell to his death. Afterward, Maleficent abdicated and crowned Princess Aurora to unify the two kingdoms.

Lutung Kasarung

Once upon a time, there was a king named Prabu Tapa Agung who had led a kingdom in West Java for a long time. He was getting old and therefore wanted to choose a successor. But unfortunately, he had no son. He thought of choosing one of his daughters, Purbararang and Purbasari. But it wasn't an easy choice. They were both very pretty and smart. The only difference was their temperament. Purbararang was rude and dishonest, while Purbasari was kind and caring. With those considerations, Prabu Tapa Agung finally chose Purbasari to be his successor.

Purbararang didn't agree with her father's decision. "It's supposed to be me, Father. I'm the eldest daughter!" Purbararang said. Prabu Tapa Agung smiled. "Purbararang, to be a queen takes more than age. There are many other qualities that one must possess," explained Prabu Tapa Agung wisely. "What does Purbasari have that I don't?" Purbararang pouted. "You'll find out when Purbasari has replaced me," Prabu Tapa Agung answered.

After the discussion, Purbararang went back to her room. "Is there something wrong?" asked Indrajaya. Indrajaya is Purbararang's future husband. "I'm upset! Father chose Purbasari as his successor and not me! I have to do something!" Purbararang said.

Driven mad by her anger, she came to a witch and asked her to send rash all over Purbasari's body. Before going to bed, Purbasari started to feel itch all over her body. She tried applying powder to her body, but it's no use. Instead, the itching grew even worse. She didn't want to scratch it, but she just couldn't help it. In the next morning, there were scratch mark all over Purbasari's body.

"What happened to you?" asked Purbararang, pretending to be concerned.

"I don't know, sis. Last night, my body suddenly felt very itchy. I scratched and scratched, and this is what happened," Purbasari answered. Purbararang shook her head. "You must have done something really awful. You've been punished by the gods!"

That day, the whole kingdom was scandalized. "What have you done, Purbasari?" demanded Prabu Tapa Agung. Purbasari shook her head. "I didn't do anything that would upset the gods, Father," she answered. "Then how can you explain what happened to your body?" Prabu Tapa Agung asked again. "If you don't confess, I'll banish you to the woods." Purbasari took a deep breath. "Like I said before, I didn't do anything wrong. And I'd rather be thrown into the woods than to confess to a deed I didn't commit."

After a short discussion with his advisor, Prabu Tapa Agung ordered Purbasari to be moved to the woods. Purbasari was very sad, but she couldn't do anything to defy her father's order. She was accompanied to the woods by a messenger. He built a simple hut for Purbasari. After the messenger left, suddenly a black monkey came to Purbasari's hut. He carried a bunch of bananas. From behind him, some animals looked on. "Are the bananas for me?" Purbasari asked. The black monkey nodded, as if he understood what Purbasari said. Purbasari took the bananas with pleasure. She also said thanks. The other animals that were looking on also seemed to smile. "Are you willing to be my friend?" Purbasari asked them. All the animals nodded happily. Although she was living by herself in the woods, Purbasari never lacked of supplies. Everyday, there were always animals bringing her fruits and fish to eat.

A long time had passed since Purbasari was banished to the woods, but her body still itched. At some places, her skin was even ulcerating. What am I supposed to do?" Purbasari sighed. The monkey who was sitting next to her stayed still, there were tears in his eyes. He hoped Purbasari would remain patient and strong.

One night, on a full moon, the monkey took Purbasari to a valley. There is a pond with hot spring water. The monkey suddenly spoke, "The water of this pond will heal your skin," he said. Purbasari was surprised, "You can talk? Who are you?" she asked. "You'll find out, in time," the monkey said. Purbasari didn't want to force the monkey. She then walked to the pond. She bathed there.

After a few hours, Purbasari walked out of the pond. She was shocked to see her face reflected on the clear pond water. Her face was beautiful again, with smooth and clean skin. Purbasari observed her entire body. There were no traces of any skin ailments. "I'm cured! I'm cured!" Purbasari shouted in joy. She quickly offered thanks to the gods and also to the monkey.

The news of Purbasari's condition quickly spread to the kingdom, irritating Purbararang. She then accompanied by Indrajaya going to the woods to see Purbasari. Purbasari asked if she would be allowed to go home. Purbararang said she would let Purbasari return to the palace if Purbasari's hair were longer than hers. Purbararang then let her hair down. It was so long, it almost touched the ground. But it turned out that Purbasari's hair was twice longer than Purbararang's hair.

"Fine, so your hair is longer than mine," Purbararang admitted. "But there is one more condition you must fulfill, do you have a future husband who is handsomer than mine?" said Purbararang as she walked toward Indrajaya. Purbasari felt miserable. She didn't have a future husband yet. So, without much thought, she pulled the black monkey beside her.

Purbararang and Indrajaya burst out, but their laughter didn't last long. The monkey meditates and suddenly transformed into a very handsome young man, a lot more handsome than Indrajaya. "I'm a prince from a kingdom far away. I was cursed to be a monkey because of a mistake I committed. I could regain my true form only if there's a girl who would be willing to be my wife," said the young man.

Finally, Purbararang gave up. She accepted Purbasari as the queen, and also confessed everything she had done. "Please forgive me. Please don't punish me," Purbararang said, asking for forgiveness. Instead of being angry, Purbasari smiled. "I forgive you, sis," she said. Soon after, Purbasari become queen. Beside her was the handsome prince, the former monkey known as Lutung Kasarung.

Aladdin

Once there lived a poor widow and her son, Aladdin. One day, Aladdin's uncle, Mustafa, came to visit them. He said, "Sister, why don't you let Aladdin come and work for me?" They agreed and Mustafa took Aladdin along with him. They walked in the desert and came to a cave. The cave was full of riches and treasures but Mustafa was afraid to go inside. He wanted Aladdin to go in and get him the treasures instead. "Go inside," commanded Mustafa, "and find me the jewels. You will also find a lamp. Bring it to me."

Aladdin went inside and found more riches than he could ever imagine. He found a beautiful ring and wore it on his finger. He also collected as many gems as he could, but before he could come out of the cave, Mustafa said, "Quick! Just hand me all, the jewels and the lamp!" Aladdin refused. Angry at the refusal, his cruel uncle blocked the entrance of the cave and left.

Aladdin sat in the dark and cried. Then he saw the old lamp and decided to light it. While cleaning it, he rubbed the lamp and out came a genie!

"Master, I shall grant you three wishes," he said. Aladdin said, "Take me home!" In seconds, Aladdin was with his mother, counting the gems he had brought from the cave. Aladdin also brought the ring along with him and when he rubbed it, out came another genie! "Master, I shall grant you three wishes!" said the genie. "Make us rich and happy!" said Aladdin. And Aladdin and his mother lived happily.

One day, Aladdin saw the sultan's daughter and fell in love with her. He went to the palace with gems and asked for her hand in marriage. The king agreed to this. After marriage, Aladdin showered the princess with all the riches and gave her a huge palace to live in. When the sultan died, Aladdin ruled the kingdom. He was just and kind hearted and everybody was happy under his rule.

Meanwhile, Mustafa came to know how Aladdin found the magic lamp and became rich. He wanted to take the lamp back. So, one day, when Aladdin was away, Mustafa came to the palace dressed as a trader. He cried out, "Get new lamps for old ones! New lamps for old!" Hearing this, the princess took out the magic lamp and gave it to him. She did not know that the old lamp was indeed magical. She bought a shiny new lamp instead. Mustafa gladly took the lamp and went away. He then commanded the genie, "Send Aladdin's entire palace into the deserts in Africa!" And saying this, Mustafa, along with the princess in the palace, were sent to Africa. Aladdin, on coming back, found his wife and house missing. He searched for the palace for three long days. Finally, he rubbed his magic ring and asked the genie, "Please take me to my princess!" The genie agreed. When he met his wife, Aladdin and the princess decided to trick Mustafa.

One night, the princess said to Mustafa, "I don't think Aladdin will ever find me here! I might as well live as your slave for I am certain he is dead now!" Mustafa was very happy and ordered for a feast. During the feast, the princess got Mustafa drunk and he fell into a deep sleep.

In the meantime, the princess took the magic lamp to Aladdin. Together, they asked the genie of the lamp to take the entire palace back to Aladdin's kingdom. The genie then killed Mustafa and Aladdin and the princess lived happily ever after.

Bawang Merah and Bawang Putih

Once upon a time, in East Java, lived a beautiful girl named Bawang Putih. Her father had passed away, and she lived with her stepmother and stepsister. Before her father passed away, her stepmother and stepsister were very kind to her. On the contrary, two days after her father passed away, they treated their badly. She had to do all the house work.

Her stepmother said, "Bawang Putih, from this moment, you have to clean the house, guard the house, wash the clothes, and cook delicious meals."

"But mother..."

"No but! You must obey my rule! What do you think? I love you?? Oh... No... No... No... I hate you! Why must I kind to my stepdaughter, ha!?"

"How poor you are," said her stepsister with a sly smile.

Her stepsister was Bawang Merah. She was very lazy, and she always got dress every time. But, Bawang Putih was more beautiful than her.

One day, Bawang Putih went to river to wash a lot of clothes. Then, she looked a goldfish cried and needed help. Its mouth was involved by an angler. Seeing the condition Bawang Putih felt sorry and helped it.

“Thank you for your kindness, would you like to be my friend,” asked the goldfish.

Bawang Putih was very surprised, the goldfish could speak! And Bawang Putih answered nervously, “O... Of course.”

Then, the fish helped her in washing and they become a best friend.

Unfortunately, their friendship couldn't last because her stepsister knew it. And her mom asked Bawang Merah to catch it. Then, Bawang Merah caught the fish and gave it to her mom. After that, they cooked it, and ate it!

When Bawang Putih knew the fish was her friend, she took the bones and said, "Oh my friend, forgive me... I can't take care of you... I don't know they will eat you. I'm sorry if I can't reply your kindness to me. Good bye friend, good bye..."

Bawang Putih buried her friend sadly. Several days later, grew a beautiful tree, with beautiful flowers on the burial. Surprisingly, a Prince came to see it and need it to be his father's because only the tree could help his father to be well again. The prince said, “Who is the owner of the tree?”

“Oh, it's mine...” answered Bawang Merah.

"Could you pull and gave it to me?"

“Of course.”

Bawang Merah tried to pull it but she couldn't. Everybody also tried, but they also couldn't. Then, the Prince looked at Bawang Putih and felt in love with her and asked her to pull the tree.

Miraculous! The tree could pulled by her and she gave it to the prince. The prince said, "Oh beautiful girl. Thank you for the tree. I love you. Would you become my wife?"

Bawang Putih only smiled and nodded. The Prince married her, and Bawang Putih had forgiven her stepmother and stepsister. And they lived happily ever after.

Beauty and The Beast

Once upon a time there was a merchant who had three beautiful daughters; Prettiest, Sweetest, and Beauty. One day when a merchant set off for market, the three of his daughter asked him something. Prettiest wanted a brocade dress, Sweetest asked a pearl necklace but Beauty just wanted a rose.

When the merchant had finished his business, he set off for home. However, a sudden storm blew up and he should found a shelter to take a rest. Then he saw a big castle but there was none there and he decided to take a rest there.

In the morning, when he left the castle, he saw a beautiful rose in castle garden. Remembering his promise to Beauty, he bent down to pick a rose. But suddenly a horrible beast came out. The beast was angry because he found there was someone who stole his rose.

The beast wanted to kill the merchant. But the merchant was begging to apologize him. Then he told that his youngest daughter wanted a rose when he came back to home.

"I shall spare your life, but on one condition, that you bring me your daughter!" said the beast.

The merchant came back to his home with sad looking face. He told the story to his family include to Beauty.

"Dear father, I would do anything for you! Don't worry, I will live with the beast and save your life!" Said Beauty.

Then Beauty began to live with the beast in the castle. In the beginning, Beauty was frightened of the Best but later she figured out that actually the beast was good and kind. In a short time, Beauty and the Beast became good friends. Then one day, the Beast asked Beauty to be his wife.

Taken by surprise, Beauty said no to the Beast proposal. But the Beast was not getting mad of it. In the next day, the Beast brought Beauty the magic mirror which could see her family, far away.

And one day, Beauty saw that her father was in serious sick. She asked the Beast to let her looked after her father. The beast could not deny but there was a condition that Beauty should come back in 7 days. Beauty thanked the Beast so much. so she was back to her family and looked after her father.

The merchant fallen ill from broken heart at knowing his daughter was being kept prisoner. When Beauty stayed with him, the merchant's condition was getting well. However, Beauty forgot her promise to come back in 7 days. In the night, Beauty had a nightmare. She had a dream that the Beast was dying.

Beauty was afraid, then she decided to come back to castle immediately. In the castle, she found the Beast lied down on the ground with its eyes shut. Beauty was sad, then she hugged the Beast and said that she would marry the Beast. Suddenly a miracle took place. The Beast magically turn into a handsome man.

"Actually, I am a prince of this castle. A bad witch turn me into beast and only real love of a maiden willing to accept me as I was, can transform me back to normal." After that, Beauty and the prince was married and lived happily in the castle.

Reog Ponorogo

A long time ago, there was a very beautiful princess named Dewi Sanggalangit. She was a daughter of a famous king of Kediri Kingdom. In spite of her beauty and elegance that had made her win the heart of many princes and kings, Dewi Sanggalangit had no interest in making a family. This worried her parents who had been hoping to have grandchildren.

One day, her father asked, "My Daughter, when will you get married?" Dewi Sanggalangit replied, "Father, I never think about it. If you really want me to get married, then I will only marry a man who is able to fulfill my wishes."

"Then, what are your wishes?" asked her father.

"I still don't know. Please let me contemplate and seek for revelations from Gods. When I'm done, I will let you know," Dewi Sanggalangit made a request, which was agreed by his father.

On the fourth day of her contemplation, Dewi Sanggalangit, accompanied by Biyung Emban, the chief lady-in-waiting, went to meet the King in the audience hall. After bowing before him, she said, "Father, whoever wishes to be my husband must be able to perform an extraordinary show that has never existed before. It is a dance accompanied by musical hornets and gamelan, with a procession of one hundred forty twin horses. There must be a two-headed animal as well."

The request was announced publicly and soon became a contest for everyone who had been wishing to marry her. All of them failed, except two men, Raja Singabarong, the King of Lodaya kingdom, and Raja Kelanaswandana, the King of Bandarangin. This worried Dewi Sanggalangit and her father for they knew who the two men were. Raja Singabarong was a cruel and vicious lion-headed man. He was big and tall, with a lion face and neck covered with fur. On the other hand, Raja Kelanaswandana was a handsome man. Yet, he had a strange behavior. He was so fond of boys that he treated them as beautiful girls. Now that the contest had run, there was noway to cancel it. In spite of his many mistresses, Singabarong had long expected Dewi Sanggalangit to be his queen. In order to fulfill Dewi Sanggalangit's requests, he had ordered his servants to find twin horses. He had also had the best artists create an attractive show and find a two-headed animal. However, the last two requests proved to be difficult to meet.

One day, he told Iderkala, his vice regent, to go to Bandarangin and find out about Kelanaswandana's preparation. Five days later, Iderkala returned, reporting that Kelanaswandana was ahead in the contest. More than one hundred twin horses had been prepared. An attractive show had also been created. Kelanaswandana didn't have much difficulty due to the help and support of his loyal vice regent, Patih Pujanggaleng, and his people who loved him and wanted him to get married and stop his bad habit. The only thing they couldn't find was a two-headed animal.

Raja Singabarong got very upset and told Iderkala to prepare a well-armed troop and attack Bandarangin at any time. He sent spies to locate Kelanaswandana's route from Wengker to Kediri, where he would ambush Kelanaswandana and seize the procession.

Somehow, the spies were caught by Kelanaswandana's men. Kelanaswandana, who was now aware of Singabarong's plan to attack, alerted Patih Pujanggaleng and prepared a sudden invasion to Lodaya before Singabarong started his move.

Filled with anxiety as his spies had not returned, Singabarong sent Iderkala to find out what had happened. His furry head was itching from fleas, so he went back to his castle where his peacock would peck at the annoying insects. As the bird was perching on his shoulder eating the fleas on his head, he fell asleep. He was unaware of what was going on, but as usual no one was dare to disturb and wake him up.

Meanwhile, Kelanaswandana's troop had advanced far into Lodaya. They didn't meet heavy resistance as the enemy was totally unprepared. Iderkala and his troop had also been defeated near the border. Now, they were nearing Singabarong's castle. The noise of the troop woke Singabarong up. He rushed furiously outside his castle to see what was going on. He saw most of his soldiers had been defeated by Bandarangin troop, but what surprised him most was the sight of Raja Kelanaswandana among his troop. He shouted in anger, "Hey, Kelanaswandana. What in the world are you doing here?"

Raja Kelanaswandana replied, "Stop acting like a fool! I know you've been planning to seize what I've prepared for Dewi Sanggalangit. You must be punished!" As he said that, he directed his magical power towards Singabarong, whose head suddenly changed. The lion head had merged with the peacock perching on his shoulder. It made Singabarong look like a two-headed animal.

Blazing in anger, Singabarong drew his keris and charged at Kelanaswandana. He moved so fast that Kelanaswandana could not evade the attack. His left shoulder was scratched. The scar soon blistered, blackened, and fumed.

Kelanaswandana barely had time to make a stance when Singabarong charged at him with another attack. This time, he managed to block it with his hand, making Singabarong stagger a few steps back. Kelanaswandana didn't waste the chance. He launched a powerful kick which dropped the keris in Singabarong's hand. Singabarong roared and sprang to Kelanaswandana as if he had been his prey. His claws, punches, and kicks landed on Kelanaswandana mercilessly. He obviously overpowered Kelanaswandana in that fight.

On the verge of his defeat, Kelanaswandana got up and remove darope-like belt from his waist. It was his secret weapon, the magical whip of Kyai Pecut Samandiman. He slashed it at Singabarong. The whiplash sounded like an explosion, leaving a trail of fume in the air, and tossed Singabarong's body as if it had been a coin. Singabarong fell to the ground. As he tried to get up, he felt so weak that he tottered.

Raja Kelanaswandana approached Singabarong, who was now unable to move. "Be a two-headed animal!" he said. Suddenly, Singabarong turned into a strange animal. It had two heads, one was that of a lion, the other was a peacock's right above the lion's head.

Kelanaswandana immediately asked his men to capture the animal and bring it home to Bandarangin.

Several days later, Raja Kelanaswandana came to Kediri to propose a marriage to Dewi Sanggalangit. One hundred forty twin horses were tailing behind him, accompanied by a strange two-headed animal which was dancing in excitement to the music of gamelan and hornet. Everyone was happy to see the show. Dewi Sanggalangit accepted his proposal and became the Queen of Bandarangin in Wengker. Raja Kelanaswandana had managed to stop his bad habit and ruled Bandarangin in peace and harmony.

The Legend of Batu Menangis

Once upon a time, there lived a mother and her daughter in a small village, in Borneo Island. The daughter was so beautiful, but she had a very bad behavior. She never helped her mother to work. She just spent her time in front of the mirror to beautify herself and to admire her beauty. While her mother had to work to fulfill their daily needs. She was also a spoiled girl. She always asked everything to her mother. If her mother didn't fulfill her want, she would cry. This made her mother so sad, but somehow she still loved her daughter. So she always tried to fulfill what her daughter wanted.

One day, the girl forced her mother to buy a new gown for her. At first, her mother refused her request. She told her daughter that she didn't have enough money. But her daughter threatened her mother, then she fulfilled to buy a new gown. Before going to the market together, her daughter reminded her mom, "Let's go shopping, but I don't want to walk beside you. You had to walk behind me, I felt embarrassed if people see me."

Even though her mother felt really sad, she obeyed her daughter request, she did not want her daughter feel embarrassed.

The daughter dressed beautifully while her mother wore very simple dress. Even though they were a mother and a daughter, they looked so different. Her mother looked like her servant. In the middle of their way to market, a man greeted them.

"Hi cute girl, is she your mother?" he asked.

“How could you think that? Of course she is not my mother, she is my servant”, the daughter replied.

Her mother was so sad to hear that. She kept silent though her heart was crying aloud. Along the street everyone passing kept asking the girl about her mother. And the girl always told them that the old woman behind her was her servant.

The mother had stayed patiently along the street. And finally she could not bear it to hear her daughter’s answer. She prayed to the God, “O Lord, punish my ungrateful daughter, please!” she prayed. Suddenly the girl’s legs turned to be a stone immediately after the mother stopped praying. The change came slowly. Knowing her legs turned to be a stone, the daughter screamed. “What’s happen to my legs?” Then she realized that she had hurt her mother’s feeling. She cried and begged for absolution to her mother.

“Mommy, Forgive me please, mom,” she begged. The daughter kept crying. But it was too late. The whole body eventually became a stone. The mother actually felt so sad to see her daughter. But she could not do anything to the God’s destiny. Even though she had become a stone completely, people could still see her tears. That is the reason why it was called Batu Menangis.

Calon Arang

Long, long ago in East Java, there was a kingdom called Kahuripan. Abiding the palace was King Sri Baginda Erlangga. That day, Prime Minister Narottama reported to him that so many people were suffering from a mysterious illness. The king commanded Narottama to find out what caused the calamity. As revealed several days later, it was all witch craft. Calon Arang of Girah village sent the illness to the people through her magic spell. King Erlangga wanted her detained right away.

"Prime Minister Narottama! Ready your special soldiers to bring Calon Arang here!" ordered Sri Baginda Erlangga.

Narottama hit a small gong to call the soldiers. No less than twenty of them amassed in the palace yard not long after. Three commanders were among them: Wangsa Jaya, Pungga Mukti, and Pungga Sasra.

“We’re heading to Girah village, Men. A witch is waiting for us there so make sure you’re ready. I don’t know what’s going to happen,” briefed Narottama.

Narottama led the troop to Girah, where they did not hesitate to destroy an old house which was believed to be Calon Arang’s. The witch did not expect the sudden attack. Badly irritated, Calon Arang told her pupils, Supaya, Guritna, Datyeng, and Pitrah to hit back.

"Give them a lesson," said Calon Arang. A brutal fight was inevitable. Knowing his troop was not going to be able to cope with the group of sorcerers, Narottama ran into the battle field to help them. But Calon Arang stopped his step.

"Where are you going, Old Man? I’m here," challenged the witch.

Narottama unsheathed his sword and cut Calon Arang’s head through. Amazingly, the witch did not die. The head came back to the body again after falling on the ground. Narottama was shaking with horror.

“What a sharp sword you are holding, Old Man. I’m scared. Ha...ha...ha!” said Calon Arang with a cynical laughter.

Narottama ran away along with his troop. The witches were too strong for them. Sri Baginda Erlangga realized that he was facing a tough enemy this time. He called Empu Bharada, a hermit known to have a great supernatural power who happened to be Calon Arang’s cousin.

“My King, what service does this kingdom need from this man?” asked Empu Bharada.

"Calon Arang has caused troubles for my people. I have sent the prime minister and a special troop to capture her but they came back defeated. You are my only hope, Empu," explained the king.

"I will try my best, King," answered Empu Bharada with a bow.

At home, Empu Bharada called his pupil, Bahula.

"What do we do, Empu? Isn’t she very powerful?" asked Bahula.

"You are right. But I know she has a weakness and to reveal it we'll need to read her book of secrets. It's in her house I suppose. I'm thinking of you going there to steal that book," answered Empu Bharada.

"How, Empu?"

"Calon Arang has a daughter, Ratna Manggali. You should make her fall for you then marry her. This way you will live in Calon Arang's house and finally take the book," said the master.

Bahula was sent to silence. He was thinking of his lover, Wedawati, daughter of Empu Bharada. How her feelings would be if she knew he married another woman.

"We shall not tell Wedawati anything about this," Empu Bharada interrupted his thought. So, off Bahula went to Girah village to propose Ratna Manggali. He met Calon Arang and showed her how agreeable of a man he was. Suspecting nothing, the witch accepted his proposal. Several days went on before Bahula married Ratna Manggali. Since then, he lived in Calon Arang's house. Just as planned, he started his search for the book of secrets immediately.

One night, when everyone in the house was sound asleep, Bahula tiptoed into Calon Arang's room very carefully. Inside, he found a wooden box in a cupboard. "This must be it," thought the young man.

He took the box and walked back to his room. In the box, there was indeed the old ragged book of secrets.

Early in the morning, Bahula told his wife and mother-in-law that he was going to visit his family in his village. Calon Arang let him go. She did not yet realize what was going on. But she would very soon. By the time Calon Arang found out that her book was gone and became so angry, Bahula had arrived in Empu Bharada's place. Covered in sweat, the young man walked in and saw his master.

"Is this the book of secrets, Empu?" asked Bahula while showing the book.

"Yes, that is it. Quick! Calon Arang must have realized it right now," Empu Bharada took the book to look for the witch's weakness. Some time later, Empu Bharada mumbled, "Hmmm... It turns out the only weapon can hurt Calon Arang is kris Weling Putih."

“What a coincidence. I shall now carry Weling Putih with me to kill Calon Arang,” said Empu Bharada with a smile.

After that, Empu Bharada and Bahula went to Girah. There, Calon Arang was started to see her son-in-law with Empu Bharada, who turned out to be her cousin. She understood now, that Bahula was actually Empu Bharada’s pupil.

“Bahula, you’re making trouble with the wrong person. Prepare yourself for my wrath,” said Calon Arang.

“The king has ordered us to stop you. The illness you spread has made his people suffer badly,” said Empu Bharada.

“I don’t care about the king! You must suffer for deceiving me!” shouted Calon Arang.

She began to attack Empu Bharada with her magic. In a wink of an eye, Empu Bharada drew kris Weling Putih out to parry it. When he was about to hit back, suddenly Calon Arang looked frightened.

“Weling Putih! Is that Weling Putih you’re holding?” Calon Arang could not believe what she saw. She knew she could not get away with a victory this time.

“Calon Arang, you are my cousin. But you are also my enemy. For what you have done to the people of Kahuripan, I must kill you,” said the old man before thrusting the kris into Calon Arang’s body.

The wicked witch died in the hand of Empu Bharada. After her death, Bahula married Wedawati, his old lover, but remained husband to Ratna Manggali. The mysterious illness had gone away. Kahuripan Kingdom was back peaceful and prosperous.
